As a leader, are you challenged by interdivisional, interagency, or interdepartmental conflict? Do you need assistance in being more effective in providing goals, values, and direction to employees who must work together, although they work on different teams?

This training will focus on building mutual trust and engagement. You will learn to:

- Build collaborative teams to better understand mission, goals, expectations, values, and ways to support each other
- Craft a shared plan and vision
- Utilize and recognize each team's unique contributions
- Facilitate and motivate others through change
- Apply an appreciative and fresh approach to problem-solving

"The Consulting Team gave us valuable insight and reminded us that communication is critical to developing successful team relationships and enhancing employee morale and engagement."

- Richard Lange, Director of Information, Monterey County
